

TABLE 1. CAMBODIA: DISPUTED BORDER SECTORS

Area	Location	Approximate Size	Characteristics
1	Near Laos-Cambodia-South Vietnam border trijunction	4 square miles	Rugged, virtually unpopulated
2	Along Route 19 west of Duc Co	4 or 5 square miles	Mountainous, lightly populated; boundary pillars frequently shifted by both sides.
3	Ia Drang drainage region	2 square miles	Hilly, lightly populated.
4	North of the Srepok crossing	0.5-mile by 25-mile strip	Hilly, lightly populated.
5	Between Mondolkiri and Quang Duc Provinces	21 square miles	Hilly, lightly populated; the boundary on Cambodian maps has long differed from other sources.
6	Along Route 13 north of Loc Ninh	undetermined; probably less than 5 square miles	Hilly, lightly populated.
7	Between Kompong Cham and Tay Ninh Provinces	10 square miles	Hilly, moderately populated; inhabited mostly by Khmers.
8	Between Svay Rieng and Tay Ninh Provinces	undetermined; no more than 20 square miles	Hilly, moderately populated; inhabited mostly by Khmers; site of recent border skirmishes.
9	Between Bassac and Mekong Rivers	5 square miles	Densely populated lowland.
10	West of the Bassac	2 square miles	Densely populated lowland.
11	Between Takeo and Chau Doc Provinces	250-meter-wide by 35-mile-long strip	Densely populated lowland; large Khmer population; site of recent border clashes.
12	Between Kampot and Kien Giang Provinces	8 square miles	Densely populated lowland; large Khmer population; Phnom Penh claims that a stream (the Rach Giang Than) forms the border while Saigon claims that the border lies to the west of it; site of recent border clashes.

SECRET

Meung Sai is Oudom Sai
Prov Capital

Provincial Capitals
underlined with thick line

District capitals underlined with thin line

SCALE 1:1,000,000 OR 30 MILES TO THE INCH
0 10 20 30 40 50 60 70 80 90 100
Kilometers Miles
WASHINGTON 1967
105° 110°
13 14
at Maps of The Society for $1.00 each on paper; plus the postage and handling. $2.00 on plastic, plus the postage & complete list of maps and order forms, write directly to The National Geographic Society, Dept. 87, Washington, D.C. 20045